Kansas Legislative Report

April 9, 2021

They're off! Legislators are on the way back to their districts for April Break as the Regular Session concluded after a busy week. This week, dedicated to conference committees, saw the resolution of dozens of lingering bills while tackling the budget and education policy. With the Regular Session over, there is a three week break before Veto Session begins May 3.

Though many issues could arise during Veto Session, the wrap up session is generally aimed at tying up loose ends on the budget, lingering conference committee items and consideration of vetoes from Governor, if any. Before the legislators left, they approved a state budget for the next fiscal year but fell short of passing a comprehensive education policy bill. The education bill contained the funding for K-12 schools as recommended by the Governor but added several controversial policy provisions. The Legislature will have to create a new bill to provide education funding when they return in May.

The comprehensive tax bill, SB 50, was sent to Governor Kelly's desk where her decision to sign or veto is being closely monitored. Though the Senate has passed a sports wagering bill, the issue may be dead for the year, along with medical marijuana, which has not passed either chamber.

After the Senate adjourned on Friday, Majority Leader Gene Suellentrop (R-Wichita) was removed from his post by the GOP caucus with a successor to be determined at a later date. Assistant Majority Leader Larry Alley (R-Winfield) will carry the responsibilities the duties through Veto Session.

The Health Conference Committee met to review their differences between House and Senate bills. Bills considered and approved as conference committee reports include legislation related to pharmacy, rural hospitals, among others. There were no bills related to dental policy in the conference committee.

Substitute for HB 2066, known as the Universal Licensure/Military Spouse Bill, is on the way to the Governor's desk, after a short conference committee. The Kansas Dental Board is subject to the bill's provisions.

Thank you and please let us know if you have any questions. Please see below for the bill matrix.
